

Doctors Against Tragedies

A serious game
for saving lives.

The Social Awareness Version

Our Goal:

Fighting the fentanyl crisis by bringing about social change.

Background Info:

If you haven't played Cards Against Humanities before, we will pre-warn, it is a very insensitive game, but it's popular and young adults love to play it. This version of DAT uses harsh words and foul language but, it was written for an at-risk population. This version is for adults and it is NOT intended for children. To note, not all members of the DAT team are involved in the creation of this version of the card game.

Printing Instructions:

Print out this file and cut out the cards along the thin grey lines. The best type of paper to use is cardstock, but any paper will work.

Game Instructions:

Each person picks up 8 white cards. The player who peed last, goes first by picking up a black card and reading it out loud. Make sure you say the word "blank" if there is a blank in the statement. Everyone else answers the question or fills in the blank by passing one white card, face down, to the person who read the card out loud. Once all white cards are submitted, the person reads out each answer to the group. For full effect, re-read the black card before presenting each answer. The person reading out the cards then picks out the funniest one and whoever submitted the card gets to keep the BLACK card. If you submitted a white card, pick a new one up. Always make sure you have 8 white cards in your hand. The person to the left goes next. The first person to get 3 BLACK cards wins.
